HONORING UNIFORM

REV. CHAS. SCOTT REPROVES CONGREGATION FOR DISREGARD OF SOLDIERS

The Christmas spirit ruled at the First Methodist Church of Glendale on Sunday. All the music of the day was in keeping with that festival. In the morning the choir furnished two anthems and Miss Marian Addison sang "Christmas," by Shelly.

Preceding the sermon the pastor spoke of the noticeable fact that our people generally are showing less regard for our boys in uniform than they did before the armistice was signed, and he called upon the members of the church to remember that this great army had stood between us and the destruction of all we hold dear; that every man in it deserves our highest consideration as long as he is in it. When they put on civilian clothes they must be just "one among us," but now they are our defenders.

The Name That Is Above Every Name

"Wherefore God hath highly exalted Him, and hath given Him a name which is above every name."—Phil. 2:-10.

The twin marvels of our religion are the incarnation and the resurrection. The symbols are the manger and the open tomb. The first expresses God's interest in humanity,

CHICAGOANS OPTIMISTIC

Mrs. R. A. Puffer of Vine Street is at home after a two months' absence in Chicago, where she visited her mother, sister and brother. She reports great optimism in Chicago; that immediately after the armistice was declared the papers were filled with plans for a bigger and more beautiful Chicago. The Christmas shopping was very heavy and began earlier than it had for the past three years. While she was there there were ten weeks of wonderful opera, said to be ahead of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, which Mrs. Puffer greatly enjoyed. She heard Galli Curci, who was in even finer, fuller voice than last year. When she reached the Windy City the influenza ban was on and it lasted for about ten days, but then was lifted and very little was heard of the disease after that. Everything was open, including the theaters. The traffic coming this way was very heavy, she says, and she found it difficult to get reservations. Many were planning to come to California after the first of the year. "California," she declared, "never looked quite so good to me. It was like coming into another and a very beautiful world."

While in Chicago Mrs. Puffer visited the splendid hospital in the new Field Building, to which many of the wounded soldiers are being brought. The building was erected for a museum, but had never been occupied when the government commandeered it for a hospital. It is right in the heart of the business district, but in a beautiful situation, nevertheless, overlooking the lake, and is said to be one of the largest, finest hospitals in the world.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS

The early hours of Christmas Day will be cheered with the singing of Christmas carols by the Epworth Leaguers of the First Methodist Church. They will start at 5:30 from the church, going by auto and singing in front of the homes of the aged, sick and shut-in. Without regard to church membership, they will come wherever their songs are desired. A telephone call to Mrs. Salsbury, giving the name and address, will insure the carolers coming with their songs and a Christmas greeting from the league. Vern Wilson is chairman of the transportation committee, Dr. and Mrs. C. D. Lusby are the committee on songs and singers, and Mrs. Salsbury on names and addresses. Her telephone number is Glendale 1276-W.

EARLY CHRISTMAS SERVICE

From time long ago an early Christmas service has been in vogue everywhere the Christmas idea is duly observed. At 7 o'clock Christwas morning, in the First Lutheran Church, a brief service of the beautiful Christmas story and appropriate songs will be rendered. All are most gladly welcome. The church is beautifully decorated for this season. Come and see.

The Sunday school Christmas entertainment will be given on the night of "Old Christmas," Thursday, the night after Christmas. Come out and greet the children. Fine recitations, exercises, songs, choruses, gifts. This is your chance if you have missed others.

COMING OF PEACE

JIM HENRY ILSE DESCRIBES JOY OF SOLDIERS OVER ARMISTICE SIGNING

One of the best letters from soldiers in Uncle Sam's army which the Glendale Evening News has had the pleasure of publishing was written by Jim Henry Ilse, son of Mrs. Hallie Ilse of this city. She has just received another fine descriptive letter from him which she is willing to share, and it is printed herewith:

Lemmer, France, Nov. 14, 1918.

Dear Mother, Papa and Aunt Kate: Am writing now in Le Foyer du Soldat in Lemmer, a little town some fifteen kilometers from Verdun. The last letter I wrote you from this place was Oct. 5, and in it I stated that we had just returned from a spell at the front for a day's rest and were to return the next day. Little did I think that day that in less than six weeks I would be writing from the same place, but with such different prospects. One can never tell where he will be from day to day in the army. Several days ago I wrote to you from near Romagne. We were then ordered to move north and accordingly on the following day we arrived at our destination, a few kilometers south of Stenay. And now one day later finds us back at Lemmer. But I am getting ahead of some of the things I want to tell you.

On the night of the 7th we were all sitting crowded around the stove in our German barracks located in a little valley—apart from any other outfit for the time being, and the advancing lines were far from us. We were discussing and arguing war, politics, Roosevelt and Hughes' attitude toward Wilson's request concerning a Democratic Congress—and of course we were settling everything for them. We were interrupted by the shots of pistols and rifles from over the hills, and on going out to investigate we could hear the distant cheering of many men and lights and trench flares illuminated the sky. We knew something was in the wind, but the only information we could get was that there were such strong peace rumors out that the Frenchies were celebrating in advance and even standing on their heads in the streets. Well, we emptied a few revolvers ourselves just to help our feelings along. Then came the big news on the 11th. So we figure that 7-11 are real lucky numbers.

This location was once the German S. O. S. Many of their cottages built of logs were artistically constructed, and their groups of these huts arranged among the wooded hills reminded one of the pleasure camps in the mountains back home. All these places had electric lights, the current being furnished from a local power plant. Board walks ran from hut to hut and a little railroad for the purpose of carrying men and ammunition back and forth wound its way around these little villages. There is some very fine farm land in this part of the country and hundreds of acres were planted. Their winter grain crops looked fine and there were beets, cabbages, turnips and other valuables, showing that Mr. Hun was preparing to winter and that he expected without doubt to hold this eastern hinge of the line.

Next we moved to some little town south of Stenay. I do not remember the name. There the Germans had

143RD ARTILLERY

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Spink of Columbus Avenue have received a telegram from their son, Harry Spink, dated at New York, announcing his arrival in that city with other members of the 143rd Artillery. William Bode, likewise of the 143rd Artillery, has also telegraphed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bode.

Mrs. Dora Gibson had hoped her son would be with them, as she had received a letter from him in which he said they were all ready for return, but it appears that only a part of the 143rd has been sent home, and according to a letter which she saw from their commander, Col. Faneuff, they are to be demobilized at the Presidio in San Francisco instead of at Camp Kearny.

RED CROSS ROLL

Mrs. George Whitaker, chairman of the Red Cross Christmas Roll, reports a total of 1,582 memberships gathered in during the drive of the past week. Between four and five hundred were taken on the street at the Red Cross booths over which the young ladies have presided. The territory has been well canvassed by the captains and their assistants, whom Mrs. Whitaker and her vice chairman, Miss Coral Griffith, wish to thank for the fine service rendered.

GERMAN MARINES REVOLT

SEVERAL REGIMENTS RIOT AND KIDNAP MILITARY COMMANDER, HOLDING HIM PRISONER

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

Berlin, Dec. 24.—Marines, revolting from orders to put to sea, entrenched themselves in a royal palace after a battle with military guards. On receiving their orders several regiments rioted, kidnaping the military commander of the city and holding him prisoner. During the fight four marines were killed and ten wounded.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

Washington, Dec. 24.—A relaxation of the restrictions on exports to the Latin-American countries was announced today by the War Trade Board. Wheat, corn, sugar, butter, linseed and cottonseed meal are still restricted. Articles manufactured require the return of an equal quantity of gold bullion.

AUSTRIANS PERISHING OF STARVATION

UNLESS FOOD IS SENT, 200,000 WILL STARVE DURING WINTER, IS PREDICTION OF COL. HAYES

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

Vienna, Dec. 24.—The Austrians are dying of starvation and 200,000 will starve during the winter unless food is sent to them, is the prediction of Col. Sumner Hayes, chief of the British Red Cross mission. Thousands of people have sold their belongings to obtain food.

ANOTHER GERMAN ROYALIST MOVEMENT

REPUBLICANS BELIEVE ELECTION OF GERMAN PRESIDENT WILL STOP MONARCHICAL ASPIRATIONS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

Berlin, Dec. 24.—Royalists are combining through propaganda to win the support of the Germans and Austrians to the re-establishment of a monarchy. The movement centers in Bavaria. Republicans are convinced that the election of a president will stop monarchical aspirations.

The establishment of seven republics in Germany and Austria in a confederacy similar to that of the United States is advocated in a movement centering in Saxony. Berlin, under this plan, would be the capital of Brandenburg, Poland and Silesia.

Electioneering for delegates for the national assembly is proceeding, the army participating actively.

SOLDIERING IN ITALY

ROBERT ROWLEY SEEING MUCH OF THE ITALIAN-AUSTRIAN FRONTIER

The following letter, received by Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Rowley from their son who is with the American forces in Italy, gives interesting details of soldiering on that frontier and of the Italian army, which will be enjoyed by other soldiers as well as by the stay-at-home civilians:

Vittorio, Nov. 11, 1918.

Dear Folks: I have so much to tell that it would take a day or two, so will have to leave out a lot.

I am on duty at the sanitary director's headquarters today, as I have worn all my tires out and can't go with the rest to evacuate a place about 68 miles from here. I have been taking some long trips through the Alps and have seen all the Piave. Incidentally, I was the first American soldier to enter Austria, as I was leading a string of ambulances that went over on a 122-mile trip to evacuate a hospital. We went over on the 9th of November and only a few Italian assault troops were watching the territory.

We are taking long runs every day of 50 or more miles. We see everything in the country and are out for two or three days at a time on our own responsibility mostly. I guess there is no other gang in this war who have a freer hand and get around more, for the Italian authorities tell us what to do and let us do it. We take grub in our cars and sleep wherever we happen to be at night.

The Italians had a big holiday today in honor of the victory, and I was near the general who reviewed the assault troops.

The Arditi are the shock troops who fight with bombs and knives. They are the most bloodthirsty crew that can be gotten together. The Bersaglierie are another bunch who are well trained and do offensive work in open fighting. They wear a big plume of black feathers and some of them ride bicycles. The other troops were mountain batteries who carry their light cannon on mules and do advanced work.

We have moved once about 28 miles from our old camp and expect to move again tomorrow.

I am sending an Austrian helmet home by mail and have gathered up a lot of stuff. Every place a bunch of Austrians was overtaken they had to throw their helmets and all war munitions away. There are bunches of stuff all along the road.

We don't know much about what is going on in France, but hope to get home in a few months.

It is a few hours later and I have received Dorothy's letter, so will add a few more lines.

We have rumors tonight that Germany has surrendered, but nothing official.

The paper today officially announces the investment of Tablac, which is the city over the line that the boys are going to today.

The kaiser's God has surely been off the job, for if it had not been for the glorious weather Italy would not have accomplished all she did. It has not rained a bit since about the 24th of last month and the days and nights have been fine.

We are all working hard, but have a good home to come to after our work. I will stop for this time and answer some other letters. Love to all. ROBERT.

AN ANXIOUS CHRISTMAS

T. J. Keleher of 228 North Louise Street is having an anxious Christmas where he had expected a very happy one. In response to his invitation, his mother had come down from the north to spend the holiday with him and Mrs. Keleher and while walking about the house in the morning dressed in a loose kimona, the garment ignited from a gas stove and she was quite badly burned. She is receiving every care at the home of her son, but he is very much concerned about her. His wife, who recently returned from the Sisters' Hospital in Los Angeles, has been prostrated by the excitement and is also confined to her bed.

NO PAPER ON CHRISTMAS

Christmas is one of the six Evening News holidays, therefore there will be no paper published from this office Wedneday. The other five holidays are New Year's, Decoration Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day and Thanksgiving. Very likely November 11 may be added to the list next year.

The N. P. Banks Post and Woman's Relief Corps will hold their regular all-day meeting next Friday and the post is arranging for a special entertainment at that time.

LOVELY TREE

DONATION SERVICE AND BEAUTIFUL PROGRAM AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

One of the most beautiful Christmas trees ever erected in the Glendale Presbyterian Church made joy for the Sunday school at the Christmas festival held in the church Monday night. It was decorated by Mr. Booth with beautiful electric light novelties in the form of birds, flowers, fishes, etc., from his own collection, and was the admiration of all beholders.

Contributions to the Armenian fund featured the service. To each member of the Sunday school a small barrel had been given to hold the individual contribution. As a signal the classes formed in line, under the leadership of James Cooper, and marched to a large barrel, into which each pupil cast the smaller cask, receiving in exchange a bag of fine Christmas candy. A portion of the donations went to home missions.

W. J. Clendenin, teacher of the Bible class, received a beautiful gift from his scholars in the shape of an elegant cut glass vase.

Following the reception of gifts a Christmas program was presented which had been arranged by a special committee headed by Howard Brown, and which included Misses Bessie Field and Vera Sinclair, Mrs. Weien, Messrs. James Newton, James Cooper and J. B. McClelland. On the program were the following numbers: Organ solo; prayer; song by all, "America, the Beautiful"; talk, Christ and Others, Vera Sinclair; recitation by John McQuarrie, primary department; recitation by Barbara King and Helen Gilkerson, primary department; song by primary department; recitation by Billie McQuarrie, primary department; recitation by four boys from Winnie Sinclair's class; song by Mable Harrison, primary department; recitation by four girls from Fern Porter's class; song by all, "Joy Bells;" recitation by three boys, "The Christmas Tree"; song, "Shining on Bethlehem's Cradle," by a group of girls; reading by Evangeline Quackenbush; duet by Elizabeth Edmonds and Olive Taylor; song by all, "Joy to the World"; prayer, James Newton.

The Junior Red Cross shop of the Cerritos Avenue school district opened Dec. 16, 1918, with dolls, kiddy-cars, games made by the children in school, candy, toys of various sorts donated by the parents and students of the district, to say nothing of some really beautiful fancy work and many other things too numerous to mention.

The shop was opened Saturday, Dec. 16, and kept open by Isabel Cutshall, Iris Nofziger, Mida Butler and Dorothy Black. The following week it was kept open by Mrs. Eustace B. Moore, Mrs. Clisbee, Mrs. Jacoby and Mrs. Ball.

Saturday Mrs. Moore engineered a food sale which proved very profitable, the proceeds amounting to $10.32. The combined sales up to Saturday night were $25.52

The shop will close Christmas Eve at 5 o'clock and will not open again until 10 o'clock January 2, 1919.

In addition to the helpers already mentioned was Charles Boring, who was present every day and ran errands, helped in the sales, made hat stands, presided over the grab box and was generally exceedingly useful.

June Goto painted many pretty candy boxes and used her decorative ability to general advantage in the shop. June is a little artist and a hand-painted candy box of her painting is worth owning.

The shop has much for which to thank Bryant Small, who made himself useful in the many ways an American youth can.

Much appreciation is due and is gratefully tendered to H. H. Davenport for the use of his store, and to O. A. Gallup and his associate, Mr. Richardson, for their generosity and assistance.

CHRISTMAS SURPRISE

Miss Bessie Field of Kenwood Street was surprised last Saturday night by her Sunday school class, who called at her home and presented her with a very handsome cut glass vase. The class had taken Mrs. Field into the secret, and after they had spent a pleasant social evening they were entertained with refreshments of ice cream and cake frosted with the Christmas colors, the table being decorated with poinsettias and red and white carnations, with a small red candle at each plate in a pretty brass candlestick. Each child carried home the candlestick as a souvenir of the occasion.

lived for a long time and they had been comfortably quartered. I have heard a lot about the old French residents of the now free towns cheering the incoming Allied soldiers, shedding tears of joy and all that theater play drama, but we have been through about as many of these cities as most newspaper reporters and I have yet to see a single civilian or even a French pup in one of them. They are either so shot to pieces that not a roof is left or else the Germans have monopolized every available building for their own use. What has become of the once happy people of these places I don't know. Maybe one the English front it is different and some homes still inhabited, but it is not the case down here where we have been.

We were awakened early the next morning and expected to start work, but plans were changed and we were ordered back. However we had a line (one circuit) to build.

At 4 o'clock we started down the Meuse valley to Verdun. I will never forget that night's trip. It gets dark early now, but it was a bright, clear night and the moon was out. The valley averages a mile or so in width, with the surrounding hills jutting into the flanks at irregular intervals, and the Meuse winds its way near the center and there are many towns very close together and situated either in the valley or back in a ravine. The bright moonlight added its touch of calm enchantment to this naturally beautiful picture and the camp fires of resting troops camped for the night on the sides of the hills blinked merrily. It is the first time in nearly five years that a soldier could build a fire for warmth in this country without being court-martialed.

There was light aplenty without that of the moon, for on all sides the celebration of victory was still in full swing and the shells and vari-colored flares lit up the sky, not for blocks as with our Fourth of July fireworks, but for miles and miles.

Troops were marching back and artillery and various wagon trains were returning from the front and it was a dramatically picturesque picture they made moving through the old destroyed towns with just the walls standing as a monument to the town that used to be, and the glow of the moon casting shadows of the old ruins over the road. Then suddenly from back of the peak of a hill would rise that great flaring red light that looked like a volcano in eruption.

Most of the way the road, as well as the river below, is lined with trees, or used to be, for now most of them have been topped or split by shell fire and only a few straggling branches are left. They have been robbed by autumn of what little clothing they had left and their bareness only added to the fantacy of the scene.

Finally we passed old Verdun and left the Meuse, on the Verdun highway toward Bar le Duc, and stopped outside of Lemmer. Here we are, but what our orders will be we haven't heard as yet. Will just give you an idea of the rumors that are going around now and if you can get anything out of them you are a better guesser than I am.

1. Here for two weeks' rest. (Some chance!)
2. We are to be reoutfitted in clothes on account of many things having been lost at the front.
3. We are to do a heavy construction job.
4. To build a lead up the Meuse to Luxembourg.
5. That all telephone men are to be sent back and that we are on the way or will be soon.

There are plenty more, but this will give you an idea. One can't take stock in any of them, but here's hoping No. 5 is correct. Seriously, I expect to be homeward bound before very long. It seems to me that the regulars will handle the situation from now on. However, if the plan is adopted to send troops back in the order of arrival, we will still not have long to wait after the troops have once started, for we were among the first three hundred thousand over here.

Well, there isn't much use speculating about our return. The news to return will come as suddenly as did the order to leave Monterey. But you know what our thoughts are and how anxious we are to see the old statue at New York and home.

Had a fine letter from Alf yesterday. My regards to Mr. and Mrs. Wright. I would love to see Alf over here.

I have wished that I hadn't mentioned in my letters that we were at the front, but I couldn't know it would be over so soon and for various reasons I thought it best to tell the truth—what I could.

I have pictured your joy over the news of victory many times and wish I could celebrate by taking you all in my arms. I am going to postpone my Christmas greetings just a little in the hope of extra good news. But guess the news I want won't come in time for us to be home by Christmas. There I go again, and it may be much longer than that. Must return for supper now or I won't get any. That wouldn't do for me.

Haven't heard from Dwight in a long time. Miss news from him, but hope to hear soon.

Much love to all. JIM HENRY.

Receipts the past week averaged $12 to $14 per day.

A CHRISTMAS TREE FOR EVERYBODY

San Fernando has discovered a way to provide a Christmas tree celebration which every one can enjoy, even though a considerable part of the population may be prisoners on account of the influenza epidemic.

Full details of the plan have not been announced, but in a general way it may be described as a traveling tree with a Santa Claus in attendance and perhaps a choir of Christmas carol singers, and a candy treat. It will start on its mission of cheer Christmas Eve at 7 o'clock and visit every home in the city. As their response the homes are asked to see that their front windows are illuminated and decorated with Christmas greens.

Eureka, Cal., Dec. 23.—Unprecedented shipments of redwood lumber to eastern parts of the United States and also to Europe will follow the readjustment of transportation facilities. At no time in the history of the redwood industry has there been such an accumulation of yarded lumber as now exists at the mills in Humboldt County. Throughout the period of the war the mills were operated at full capacity with the assurance that peace would bring tremendous demands. In one comparatively small lumber yard a stock valued at four million dollars is awaiting shipment.

NEW THOUGHT

A very interesting lecture was delivered at the Masonic Temple Sunday morning by Dr. Frank L. Riley, under the auspices of the New Thought Center of Glendale. Dr. Riley said in part:

"The most interesting and significant day in all the year is Christmas Day. On that day we celebrate the birth of the Great Master, Jesus—the foremost exponent of 'peace on earth, good will to man.'

"Christmas, 1918, should mean much to every idealist and lover of peace throughout the world, since this old world of ours is at last delivered from the scourge of war. Christmas also has a deeper significance, for it symbolizes the new birth, the soul's awakening, or the birth of the mystic Christ (the Christ idea) in man. The scriptures inform us that man is "a temple of the living God," and that the spirit of the Creator dwells in us. In other words, there is a divine spark in every human soul.

"When man experiences this spiritual awakening a wonderful sense of harmony steals over him. The angels sing and the wise men come and offer gifts, which signify that man as king and priest will, one day, have dominion over all things, conquering in their turn sin, disease and the 'last enemy,' death.

"The 25th of December is, astronomically speaking, the birth of the new year. From that day onward there is more and more light in the world. In like manner, the spiritual new birth is a new era for the soul. Man, from that day onward, will have more and more light on life's pathway. God has given man the Christmas tree, the tree of life, on which will be found every good and perfect gift.

"When man is spiritually awakened he no longer partakes of the fruit from the tree of knowledge of good and evil, for he realizes that God is Good, and that 'in Him there is no darkness at all.'"

Merry Christmas

This has been a strenuous year. Never in the history of our country have all business institutions been called upon to rally to the support of our government as they have during the twelve months just closing.

It has been with great pleasure and pride that the First National Bank has complied with all requests made for the carrying out of the government's patriotic program. We are well aware that it has been possible for us to do this only because of the loyal support given to us by our patrons.

To our patrons who have so patriotically assisted us in rendering aid to the government in the great national crisis, and to all our friends we extend a Merry Christmas and we unite with you in rejoicing that peace on earth has come again.

HONORING UNIFORM

the second the ideal destiny of man. God cared enough for us so that "the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." Man was not born to die, but "because He liveth, we shall live also."

The opening of the second chapter of Phillippians brings these twin marvels together and places them each in the light of the other. They are related as cause and effect. The voluntary incarnation was the cause The resurrection, the effect. "He humbled Himself . . . . wherefore God hath highly exalted Him."

The supreme name is the mark of His exalted character. tI is not the five letters, "J-e-s-u-s," which God has made supreme, but the nature which the name betokens. "Thou shalt call His name Jesus, for He shall save." The glory of Christmas is the celebration of a new supreme character, that of the "Sarios." Till Jesus came, the supremacy had been held unquestioned by the destroyers, but since Jesus came it might almost be said that the only thing which makes a man remembered much longer than his funeral lasts is his doing something Christly. And we are coming to see that about all the hhuman goodness there has been in the world is but the reflected radiance of the name of names—Jesus.

Christian civilization is the process of fitting the character of Jesus in the supreme place. It is in process now. It will be completed. "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven." Because of its incompleteness, we sometimes forget how far the process has been carried.

It ought to help us on the greatest Christmas the world has ever known to remember that the name of Jesus is above the calendar.

THE RED CROSS SANTA CLAUS

Monday the Red Cross truck was busy all day on Santa Claus errands. In the forenoon it placed its services at the disposal of the Christmas committee of the Glendale Elks for the distribution of Christmas packages. In the afternoon it did the same work for the Associated Charities, carrying gifts to those who have had sickness or misfortune and for that reason need cheer. In its ministrations it was greatly indebted to Sammy Tupper of Belmont Street, who stayed with the auto during the afternoon and did yeoman service in straightening out addresses and finding the people to whom the packages were addressed, a task of difficulty in some instances, for the territory included Burbank and Eagle Rock and some queer nooks and corners.

PEACE ON EARTH

O! you who sleep in silence
On Belgium's war-wrecked plain,
We made a vow and we kept it,
That you shouldn't have died in vain.

Sleep on; we have kept that vow,
You did not die in vain,
For now the war is over
And the world's homes are safe again.

Now the soft snow is falling,
'Tis Christmas time of year,
And all the world is rejoicing
That peace once more is here.

And we look back through the ages
To another Christmas, when
The angels from heaven came singing
"Peace on earth, good will toward men."

Even they must be more happy
When they see the battle is still,
And once more among men and nations
On earth there is peace and good will.

Cora Louise Butterfield.
Glendale, Cal., Dec. 24, 1918.

METHODIST CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT

The First Methodist Church Sunday school gave a Christmas entertainment Monday evening in the social hall of the church, which consisted of recitations and songs by members of the various departments and a series of tableaux presenting the Armenian appeal to America, by the older members of the school. Instead of giving presents to themselves or to their friends, the school this year made a combined gift of money to the Armenians and Syrians. The sum collected by each class was brought to the entertainment and amounted to $200.

Besides this combined gift, a large quantity of clothing, groceries, vegetables, etc., was brought in and will be given away locally to the needy of our own town, both Mexicans and Americans, and any surplus which may remain after their wants have been supplied will be distributed by the Fifth Street mission of Los Angeles.

A. W. Tower was the recipient of a beautiful study lamp, presented to him by the Sunday school in appreciation of his services as superintendent.

Between two and three hundred people attended the entertainment, which was much enjoyed by all. It marks a recent departure in Sunday school celebrations which is more in keeping with the Christ spirit that it is better to give than to receive.
